Introduction and Code of Conduct

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Introduction and Code of Conduct - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Recruitment and New Joiner Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Probation and Confirmation Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Working Hours and Attendance Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy

Leave Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Leave Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy

Remote Work Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Remote Work Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy

Performance Management Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Performance Management Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Compensation and Payroll Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy

Training and Development Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Training and Development Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Promotion and Career Growth Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Code of Ethics and Anti-Harassment Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

IT and Data Security Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Health and Safety Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Travel and Expense Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Disciplinary Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Grievance Redressal Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Diversity and Inclusion Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Whistleblower Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result

in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Retirement and Exit Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 1

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 1.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 1.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 2

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 2.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 2.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 3

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 3.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 3.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 4

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 4.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 4.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 5

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 5.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 5.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 6

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 6.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 6.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 7

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 7.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 7.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 8

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 8.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 8.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 9

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 9.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 9.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 10

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 10.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 10.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 11

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 11.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 11.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 12

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 12.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 12.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 13

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 13.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 13.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 14

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 14.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 14.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 15

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 15.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 15.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 16

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 16.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 16.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 17

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 17.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 17.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 18

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The

Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 18.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 18.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 19

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 19.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 19.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 20

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 20.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 20.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 21

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 21.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 21.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 22

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 22.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 22.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 23

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 23.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 23.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 24

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 24.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 24.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Post-Retirement Benefits Policy - Clause 25

This clause outlines the organization's expectations, rules, compliance standards, and procedural guidelines applicable to all employees. Employees must adhere strictly to these provisions to ensure operational excellence, legal compliance, and ethical conduct. Failure to comply may result in disciplinary action, including warnings, suspension, or termination depending on severity. The Human Resources department reserves the right to interpret, amend, or update this clause in alignment with organizational objectives and applicable employment laws. Documentation and acknowledgment from employees shall be maintained for audit and compliance purposes.

Sub-clause 25.1: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.2: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.3: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.4: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.

Sub-clause 25.5: Employees are required to understand and comply with this policy in both letter and spirit. Managers shall ensure proper communication, training, and documentation of compliance procedures. Periodic audits may be conducted to verify adherence. Exceptions must be formally approved by senior management and documented appropriately.